Chicago Public Radio Presents...Evolving Faith: Meaning, Ethics and Ideas

Peabody Award-winning journalist Krista Tippett and founder of Interfaith Youth Core Eboo Patel engage in thrilling conversation at the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago

Chicago, IL — As part of the Chicago Public Radio Presents Event Series, Chicago Public Radio [WBEZ 91.5FM] will captivate live audience members with a riveting conversation between Krista Tippett, the Peabody Award-winning host of American Public Media's™ groundbreaking program on public radio, Speaking of Faith with Krista Tippett®, and Eboo Patel, founder and Executive Director of Chicago-based, globally active Interfaith Youth Core. The November 16 discussion will focus on the changing face of religion, spiritual ethics, belief and non-belief in the post 9/11 world and will take place at the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago at 7 P.M.

As a radio host, Tippett takes on thought-provoking subjects, interviewing wise thinkers and activists, asking new questions of old debates and creating a space for fresh thinking and real conversation. At this event, the tables will be turned. Patel will lead the discussion, asking Tippett the types of questions she usually dishes out and exploring the surprises and discoveries she has made as religion has moved from the sidelines to the forefront of world affairs.

“I’m fascinated,” Tippett says, “in how insights we call ‘religious’ or ‘spiritual’ find expression in every area of life – from work to parenting, from television to quantum physics. I am thrilled by the creative interplay I find across supposed dividing lines – science versus religion, for example – on the hardest and most interesting issues before us.”

Eboo Patel says, “I look forward to the rare opportunity to interview Krista, one of the foremost voices on religion and society today. All too often, when religion steps out in public, division and strife ensue. I believe that the solution to the problem of divisive religious voices in the public life is not fewer religious voices – or none at all. The answer is greater participation of diverse religious voices, guided by wise people like Krista.”

Speaking of Faith with Krista Tippett, produced and distributed by American Public Media in St. Paul, Minn., tackles national and global issues of the 21st century, drawing in secular and non-secular audiences—topics range from politics to science and more. The show, which has received a Peabody and two Webby awards, is broadcast on more than 225 stations across the U.S. It also is gaining momentum through podcasts, Internet exposure and live events. Speaking of Faith with Krista Tippett can be heard in Chicago on WBEZ 91.5FM at 7 a.m. on Sundays, starting September 27, 2009.

The Chicago Public Radio Presents Event Series is just one stop on Tippett’s national speaking tour, which will include cities such as Philadelphia, Boston, Hartford, CT and Washington, DC. She plans to explore the religious transformation among the U.S. population, attracting people of all spiritual backgrounds, both believers and non-believers alike.

The Speaking of Faith with Krista Tippett national tour is supported by a grant from the Lilly Endowment (www.lillyendowment.org). The foundation supports projects focused on religion, education and community enhancement, specifically regarding youth.

As founder of Interfaith Youth Core, Eboo Patel’s mission is to connect young people from different religious backgrounds through common values such as bettering the community and building relationships, rather than focusing on political or religious conflict. He also serves on the Advisory Council of the White House Office of Faith Based and Neighborhood Partnerships, a position that was appointed by President Obama.

The November 16 event will be streamed live on www.wbez.org and www.speakingoffaith.org. Chicago Public Radio Presents is sponsored in part by Goose Island Brewery, Spex Luxury Eyewear, and AV Club Chicago.
